MONTPELIER

Langdon Meadow May Be Turned Into a Big Garden.

The converting of Langdon meadow, well known as a circus ground, into a big garden with the school children of Montpelier doing the work and the material and money furnished by the Montpelier committee on public safety, is the plan of the committee which met last evening in the city hall. Arrangements are under way and practically completed to obtain the services of an experienced gardener, whose duty it will be to act as overseer and instructor of the fifty or a hundred children, who are anxious to do their part toward helping the country raise food-stuffs. A meeting of the committee on schools with the committee on food, sub-committee of the general committee, with Mayor Mitchell chairman ex-officio will be held this afternoon to discuss details. Langdon meadow comprises forty acres of land and it is not known yet how much will be used for gardening; perhaps the entire lot may be utilized. The parochial schools have been asked to co-operate with the public schools in furnishing students to do the work and the financial part will be looked after by the committee. Mayor Mitchell and others are enthusiastic about the scheme and think perhaps other cities and towns in the state may follow Montpelier in having such a public garden.

A deed was filed to-day in the city clerk's office recording the sale of a house and lot at 81 Berlin street to Edwin O. and Emma A. Grant by Sarah J. Lawrence. The consideration was not made public.

The regular meeting of Capital City grange will be held Thursday evening. This is young people's night and it is requested that the young people, especially, attend, although everybody, old and young, is invited. Mrs. Minot has prepared an interesting program.

In probate court yesterday Egbert N. Field of Northfield settled his account as guardian of Nora Holmes of Northfield.
